Showcased here in ReCreations containers for every season, every style.

“ I use ReCreations for much of my design work, primarily because they're so easy to use: lightweight enough to stack, yet sturdy enough to stay put, with a natural surface that's easy to glue or add embellishments.
And because ReCreations are so affordable, they make ideal 'leave behinds' — guests can enjoy the arrangements after the festivities are over. ”

Celebrations

“ When I think about design for special events, the unexpected is what always attracts. In other words, it’s not the flowers you use — it’s how you use them. What can be done differently with color, texture, line? I like using ReCreations because they don’t get in the way of the flowers. And they can be used in such unexpected ways: notched to hang on the back of a chair. Paired as a door hanger. Or as the blooming base for a punch bowl. ”

R_eCreations are the perfect neutral starting point for your designs, with more options in color, shape and size.

“Field Straw. Fresh Basil. Natural Bark. These three neutral hues are suitable for so many design seasons: refined fall and winter events. Lively spring and summer functions. And because ReCreations come in a host of sizes, you'll find containers small enough for votives — or large enough to fill with crushed ice and use as a cooler. ”
